

Scurion® - ‚speleo‘ battery-case handling

Firstly make sure that the end of the grey cable arrives in the battery case like this (not more!) and tighten well the black feedthrough.

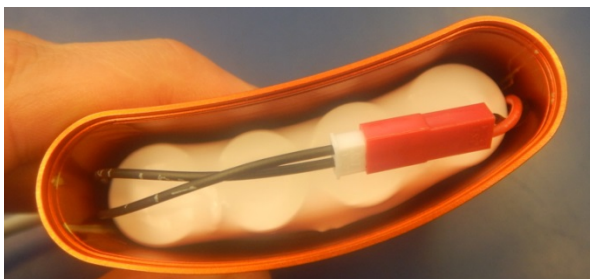

Now press the black cables right to the wall and slip the battery into the battery case as indicated on the small sticker on the battery (upside down!)

This prevents the battery cable from any possible damage while extracting the battery from the casing.

You should end up with this result and no force should be necessary to slip the battery in and out.

The cables have the exact length so that you can easily connect them. And the battery case is deep enough so that the lid will fit perfectly ☺
